The proposition of the Lexington and Big Sandy road is now before the stockholders of the Louisville and Frankfort and Lexington road. The proposition is to connect these roads, so that the Lexington and Big Sandy road will be practically the continuation of the road from this point to Lexington. The only condition is that the Louisville and Frankfort road shall issue its bonds to the Lexington and Big Sandy road for one hundred thousand dollars, and the Lexington and Frankfort road bonds to the amount of fifty thousand; these bonds not to be delivered until As a testimonial of his independent and fearles the Lexington and Big Sandy road is finished to Mt. Sterling, a distance of thirty-three miles.

As a matter of profit, we should expect the proposition would be accepted promptly and unanimonsly by the stockholders in the road from this point to Lexington. The road from Lexington to Mt. Sterling, if it went no further, would contribute much more to our road than the interest on finished to Big Sandy, and will be met there, in a short time, by the Virginia roads; and in this part the Fillmore men played in the recent politiway the road from this point to Lexington will cal drams: become one of the great thoroughfares of the country, instead of being, as it now is, local and isolated. This is, in fact, the only opportunity to To the Republicane of the State of California: convert our road into one of general travel from the South to the East.

Regarding the proposition as merely one involving dollars and cents, we can see nothing so important to the roads to Lexington likely to be offered hereafter. The Lexington and Big Sandy road can get the funds by making the same offer to the Cincinnati and Covington road ; but a connection with Louisville is perhaps better for them and certainly it is vastly better for us.

Some of the stockholders in the Louisville and Frankfort road, who have looked carefully into the for the benefits accruing from the connection proposed. They regard the connection as worth half their stock in the present road.

We have no fears that this proposition will be rejected by the stockholders in the Louisville and Frankfort road, if they take the trouble to examine it. The Board of Directors have unanimousine it. The Board of Directors have unanimously recommended it to the favorable consideration of the stockholders, and the able and efficient President of the road has put into the hands of each stockholder a full exposition of the subject.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24th, 1856. FELLOW CITIZENS: We are now upon the eve of a mighty struggle for Liberty! Carriers' Address

January 1, 1857. INTRODUCTION. Upon this great and very trite occasion. We soar a flight above the common venture. Devoid of fear from any wing abrasion In which our head might serve as an indenture; And furthermore—we hope it won't amaze one— We honestly believe that we were sent here To give the world assurance of a talker, And note down rhymes—that all may find—in

'Tis seldom that we mount the steed Pegasus, To spur our doubtful way to fame and glory; We leave such feats to those stupendous asses Who verse-ward plod their weary way to bore ye; But when we do take up the rein, the masses Pronounce our name the greatest one in storyrtal, beautiful euphon In which we think they're not at all erroneous

THE OLD AND NEW YEAR. The very subject palls! Time out of mind, A host of scribblers, who quote French and Latin, Have beat their brains against the passing wind, And writ their nothingness on sheets of satin; Or spouted prosy verse (till you were blind With rage), from evening close till matin-And all to tell you how the Old Year died, And how the New was ushered in with pride.

The Old Year died-as old and new years must-And all the world was at the funeral wake; The ghastliest corpse that ever turned to dust Smote the astonished sight. Pause here to make Room for the mourners: Oh, how doubly curst Are they who live to mourn! The flery lake Has no such pangs as broken hearts endure-From hopeless hope the dead are all secure.

The Old Year died-the mourners came and went,

His epitaph was written with a tear.

His faults and virtues variously were blent With good and ill, with love, and hope and fear. The Old Year perished-nor the best nor worst Of all the years the world has blest or curst. Oh, what is Time? Another year is dead: The living smile or mourn that life is left. Oh, what is Time, when every hope has fled From the sad heart, of all but life bereft?

And what is Life, since Time's keen soythe has cleft

The fairest flowers that ever bloomed or bled ?

and what is Earth? A charnel house of graves-

Mankind? Saints, sinners, savages, and slaves And where are they who hade the Old Year hail? Who blest our hearts with an unusual joy-The rose-bud cherub, and the maiden pale, The blooming bride, the wild, ambitious boy Oh, where that one whose love can never fail-The blessed Mother, free from all alloy? The midnight grave has claimed them-far away

Their spirits soar in everlasting day. Grim-visaged Death went stalking o'er the land, With pestilential breath and sharpened scythe, Reaping the harvest sown by God's command; Binding up human sheaves, with song as blithe As if his harvest-home were near at hand— Regardless though our tortured souls should writhe In speechless anguish. "God of Heaven, O! spare The loved ones left," is now our cry and prayer.

The Old Year died-as we have said and sung, And asten myriad other bards will sing-To one so modest, lovely, fair, and young, Born of decay and ashes. Now among The New Year dawns-a blessing or a curse

A benison to the pure and meek in heart. Who are content to bear with joy or woe; Who can, through good and ill report, impart A blessing on their dearest friend or foe: A curse to all of Passion's crowded mart Where human streams of heartless beings flow Where love and honor may be bought and sold. A nd where the frail and false bow down to gold

The midnight bell that toll'd the parting life Of the Old Year, now ushered in the New : The many hearts, so rent by time and strife, Became as graves, in which the blessed few Or lover. The tears that fell like dew Gave way to smiles of hope. Why mourn the past New Years and loves may bless us till the last.

" Now brightly bold, now beautifully shy;" And such a one we have, not long since, met. With frozen breath, but with an amorous eye; In short, a wear or fair that makes one serious,

And what care you about a loveless fair ? A quiet drive will shortly bring us there. Meantime we pause to bid a kind adjeu.

The death of Major Macnamars, in Ireland, has Mr. O'Connell, in his memorable and fatal duel with Liout. D'Esterre, at the time one of the representatives of the guild of merchants in the old. exclusive corporation of Dablin. Although the Catholic association, whose organization and operations were so instrumental in forcing the yers, physicians, and others, to interest themselve question of emancipation on the Duke of Welling-ton and Sir Robert Peel, was not called into ex-istence for some years subsequent to 1815, there yet had been numerous meetings of the Catholics held in Dublin, at which Mr. O'Connell was the heid in Dublin, at which Mr. O'Connell was the principal as well as the most fereible speaker, and, in one of his addresses that year, he referred to the bigotry exhibited by the corporation towards their Roman Catholic fellow-citizens, winding up by calling them "the beggarly corporation," a name which stuck until the passing of the Irish corporation reform bill. D'Esterre, who had been a least extend to the corporation of the and sent a challenge to O'Connell, and the meet-ing took place on Wednesday, February 1st, 1815 t 4 o'clock P. M., at Bishops Court, in the county of Kildare. Previous to the opponents taking their ground, Sir Edward Stauley, who acted as second to Mr. D'Esterre, addressed Major Macna-

"Well, sir, when each has discharged his case of ne the affair will be considered as terninated, and that we leave the ground." Macnamara replied: "Sir, you may, of course, take your friend from the ground when you please. You, sir, are the challenger, and may retire from the ground whenever you think proper; but I shall ter into any such condition as you propose not enter into any such condition as you pr However, it is probable there may be no oc However, it is probable there may be no occasion to discharge the whole case of pistols." And so, indeed, it turned out; the principals took their ground, both being represented as displaying "the greatest coolness and courage," and, before the lapse of a minute, both shots were heard. Mr. D'Esterre's missed, but Mr. O'Connell's took effect in the thigh of his antagonist, about an inch below the hip. After spending the interval in considerable agony, Mr. D'Esterre expired at two c'clock, r. w. on the Friday following: and on the o'clock, r. m, on the Friday following; and on the next day Mr. O'Connell received the subjoined letter from Sir Edward Stanley:

ROYAL BARRACKS, 4th February 1815. Sir: Lest your professional avecations should be interrupted by an apprehension of any proceed-ing being in contemplation, in consequence of the late melancholy event, I have the honor to inform you that there is not the most distant intention of any prosecution whatever on the part of the famfriends of the late Mr. D'Esterre. I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD STANLEY.

DANIEL O'CONNELL, Esq., Merriam square. To this communication Mr. O'Connell sent the following reply, in which he expressed his regret at the death of his antagonist -- a regrot which, it is well known to his intimate friends, he often gave utterance to in after life. In justice to h nory, it may also be mentioned that he offered an annuity upon Mr. D'Esterre's widow which that lady rofused to accept: MERRIAM SQUARE, 5th Feb., 1815. Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the re-ceipt of your letter of yesterday, and I beg of you to accept my sincere thanks for your very polite and considerate attention.

It is to me a mouraful consolation to meet such generous sentiments from those who naust be af-flicted at the late unhappy event. But believe me, my regret at that event is most sincere and unaffected; and, if I know my own heart, I can with the strictest truth assert that no person can feel for the lose society has sustained in the death of Mr. D'Esterre with more deep and lasting sor Allow me again to thank you, sir, for the cour tesy of your letter-a courtesy quite consisten with the gentlemanly demeaner of your entire conduct on this melancholy transaction. I have the honor to be, sir, your most obedient servant, DANIEL O'CONNELL.

SIR EDWARD STANLEY. The result of this duel was most unexpected by Mr. D'Esterre's friends in the corporation. From the fact of his being considered a "first rate shot," it was looked upon as almost a matter of certainty that his rather bulky opponent would not have left the ground in a whole kin; and that he did so, under all the circumstances, whether rightly or not, has been attributed by some to the firm-ness and decision of his second, the late Major

WILDER .-- We hear that many efforts have been made and are now being make to induce the President to pardon Wm. H. Annual Report of the Astuary of the Kentucky Mechanics' Institute. To the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Me chanice' Institute: GENTLEMEN: It gives me pleasure to have so favorable an account to communicate of the pro-gress and present condition of the Institute. Notwithstanding unusually unfavorable circumstances, every department has been eminently successful. The removal of the exhibition buildstances, every department has been eminently successful. The removal of the exhibition building cost a large amount of money, and otherwise interfered with our arrangements; during the exhibition bad weather prevailed for a considerable portion of the time, and, while it lasted, diminished the receipts; the low river prevented. minished the receipts; the low river prevented the attendance of many who, otherwise, would have visited the Fair; but, notwithstanding these drawbacks, the Institute has been success ful in every respect.

The library is in a flourishing condition. The coms are better attended, and a much larger number of volumes circulated than ever before. onsiderable additions have been made to it, and the rooms are kept well supplied with newspapers and magazines. On our tables are all the city and magazines. On our tholes are all the city papers (kindly donated by the proprietors), papers from New York city, Philadelphia, Boston, Balti-mere, Cincinnati, Washington city, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, &c.: Harper's, Graham's, Blackwood's, Hunt's Merchants', Bankers', and Blackwood's, Hunt's Merchants', Bankers', and Knickerbooker Magazines; North British, West-minster, Edinburg, London Quarterly, and De Bow's Reviews; Silliman's Journal, and House-hold Words. The rapidly increasing apprecision of this most beneficial feature of the Institute ought to be very encouraging to its friends.
The Institute is indebted to the following persons for contributions to the Library:

Since the Keller troupe made its appearance among us—whether in consequence or not, we cannot say—tableaux are becoming quite fashionable. Several private families have enjoyed tableaux conducted by the younger members of the household and friends. Last night a series was given in the Unitarian church on pooks read :

The Annual Exhibition was very successful.
The building was well filled, principally with the manufactures of our own city, and the receipts were larger than they were last year, under more disadvantageous circumstances. The expenses, of course, were greater, on account of the removal of the building; but, exclusive of the expendi-tures attendant upon the removal, they were not o great, while there was an increase in the receipts. The community looks upon these expositions now with a more favorable eye than ever before, and seems to appreciate more correctly their importance.

THE SHORTEST AND MOST DI-RECT ROUTE TO THE EAST FROM LOUISVILLE.

医自然医院医院 CENTRAL OHIO, Bltimore and Ohio Railroads.

WASHINGTON CITY ean be presured, to which point, as well as to BALTIMORE, it is the SHORTEST, MOST DIRECT, and in every respect the most reliable route. It is the only reute by which purchasers of through tickets to

NEW YORK are enabled to reach the cities of BALTIMORE,

PHILADELPHIA, and NEW YORK, and NEW YORK, at the cost of a ticket to New York only, thus enabling ousiness men and travelers for pleasure or information, to visit four of the principal cities in the Union for LESS cost THAN CAN BE AFFORDED BY ANY OTHER ROUTE.
In a idition to these great advantages, the inducements ofered to travelers in the promot and edicient management of trains on this route must not be lost signt of; added to which the grandeur of the scenery of localities, to be met with in traversing the Baltimore and Other Railroad, are such as are afforded by no other line of travel in the world.

For the action as by any other route.

For through tickets—Apply on board the U.S. mail steamers, which leave Louisville every day at 12 o'clock, or at the other of the Jefferson wile mailtoned, by any of the Jefferson wile, this and Mississippi, and Little Miani Railroads, or via indicated the Daylor, and Xenas; and in Chornharth, at the other of the Little Miani Railroad, No. 2 Burnet House, see of the Little Miani Railroad, No. 2 Burnet House, see Building; and old office, southeast corner of Broadway and Front streets, o'f You'l' the hope of the dayley at the Bastern (Little Miami) Depot, East Front street.
